Providing a better service for our customers

In this issue, we take a look at two changes we have made to serve our customers better.

The first is our new website, which has been restructured to enable visitors to quickly find the information they want. The second is to bring our daughter company Integri Professional Services back into the parent company, allowing us to provide our customers with an even better service.

Enhanced website

Integri's restructured website is now live, providing visitors with a clear, logical route to the information they need with a minimum of mouse clicks.

The site's new structure splits all the information about us and our competencies into four distinct categories: Company, Products, Services and Contact.

Jan de Meester, Integri's Managing Director, explained: "Visitors come to our site looking for specific information. The improvements we've made make it easier for them to find what they are looking for."

The Products pages are the clearest example of this. They split Integri's product offering into five separate sections, each dedicated to one of our five standard platforms – with a sixth describing the Integri INQ® Open Platform itself. "Most of our customers are typically interested in only one of our product platforms. It made sense to group the products by platform, rather than by application," said Jan.

Under Services, you can find details about our Training & Consulting, Tool Customization, Independent Testing and Conformance Test Lab services.

For more on Integri itself, visit the Company pages. Here you will find the latest news, success stories and references as well as general information about the company. And if you'd like to get in touch or pay us a visit, the Contact section provides our contact information, together with a detailed description of how to reach us by air, rail or road. This section also contains the contact details of the partners who complete our offering by serving our clients locally.

Given the increased importance of Integri France, our Paris-based daughter company, the website's main pages are now also available in French, and we've added a special section on the INQ Monétique Platform, our dedicated tool for the French Domestic market.

The website has changed, but the address hasn't. You can still visit us at www.integri.com. If you'd like to share your thoughts on the new structure, please e-mail us at info@integri.com.

Integrating Integri

In a practical move which unites the Integri organization to ensure optimal support for customers, Integri Professional Services merges with its parent company.

Integri Professional Services, the independent daughter group of Integri, has been responsible for training, customization, acceptance test services and conformance testing for our customers. For more than four years, it has enabled us to meet all our customers' service needs.

By bringing Integri Professional Services into the parent company, we'll be able to enhance the synergies between the different parts of our organization – and manage our competencies even more effectively.

For our customers, it all adds up to greater speed and efficiency in the products and services we offer. "Working together more closely," said Jan de Meester, Managing Director of Integri, "the teams within Integri will understand each other's needs more rapidly and more accurately. So we'll be able to provide an improved service, and since this move also reduces our overheads, we're ensuring that we can do so at an attractive price point."

From a legal standpoint, this does not affect our clients. All Integri Professional Services' liabilities are automatically taken over by the parent company.
