FIME to distribute Integri test solutions

Companies sign agreement to market test technology in America and Asia Pacific

Brussels, 23 April 2009 – Integri, a leading provider of expertise and test tools for payment, ticketing and mobile applications, announces today that it has signed an agreement with FIME, a well-known provider of test solutions and a major test laboratory, to promote and distribute Integri solutions. The new collaborative effort covers card and terminal test tools as well as host simulators.

From 2007 onwards, Integri and FIME have collaborated intensively, aspiring to migrate the majority of FIME's test tools on Integri's open test platform INQ[®]. Now, with the expansion of its international footprint, Integri enables FIME America and FIME Asia to provide End-to-End testing solutions for vertical markets such as banking, retail, mobile communications and transport in addition to its card and terminal laboratory activities. The agreement focuses on test solutions for transactional systems. It addresses card and terminal manufacturers, payment acquirers, payment switch providers and issuers.

Jan De Meester, CEO at Integri comments: "With FIME's local business knowledge, in addition to a profound understanding of Integri products, we are confident that together we bring added value to answer business demands aptly. Mr De Meester adds: "All test tools are built on Integri's modular open test platform INQ[®], enabling users to easily program simulators, automate tests and update tools to new or modified specifications. Accordingly, FIME and its customers now benefit from improved customization options, scalability, cost-efficiency and shorter time-to-market."

Xavier Giandominici, Director of FIME America added: "This partnership will be a valuable addition to FIME's global offer, and will really strengthen the FIME America branch. We are pleased to be able to provide our American customers with end-to-end testing solutions and are committed to this promising market."
